

CHE 311 Spring 2019 Self-Study Report

Instructor: Lew Wedgewood

Course Comments / Plans

The application of calculus and differential equations to transport problems is difficult for students. I have developed a math review homework set that is given at the beginning of the term. Students are able to assess their math deficiencies before the math skills arise in the course. This gives them a chance to review the necessary skills.